FROM THE EAST...

My Brother:

The Most Worshipful Grand Master has scheduled a One Day Class for 18 through 20 year olds for January 4th, and it is our duty to support him; it is our duty to be flexible. When I watch a tree swaying in the breeze, I am reminded of the importance of flexibility. If it were not for its flexibility, the tree would break at the first gust of wind.

We too must be flexible – in our expectations, in our attitudes and in our views. Being flexible, we open ourselves to new ideas and opportunities. We, therefore, do not resist growth, progress or change; instead, when challenging situations arise, we must bend with the wind of change and be flexible. We must realize that we could learn from these young men as much as they could from us. We must realize that the only thing constant in life is change. We must realize that it is our responsibility to assist in making these young men better citizens and better Masons. And yes my Brother, do not believe that this is a one way street, because these young men could also teach us much about a world that is changing faster than we realize.

So my Brother, in preparing for the Grand Master's scheduled One Day Class, let us do so knowing that the young men who will be participating therein will be the young men on whose shoulders the future of our fraternity will rest, and that we owe it to them and to ourselves to transmit and impart all the light we can to them.

Sincerely & Fraternally

C. John Lashley

Worshipful Master
